Report from John Stanley-Whyte

WE'RE HERE

After a very uneventful journey through Monday, three of the four team members and families arrived early Tuesday morning in Pattaya. Thanks to Anne for some excellent logistics we all loved the air conditioned coach to sprawl out in and a real bargain to boot. After a quick swim in the hotel pool to wake up it was down to the Royal Varuna Y.C. to register the team.

Lunch and a quick nap to sort out the jet lag was followed by charter boat collection and rigging ready for measurement and practice tomorrow. ILCA are putting countries together in the coach boats and we are negotiating with the AUS team, not least because they have been here for a week training already.

Early impressions of the organisation and venue are good and the sunset was stunning. The final family is due to arrive later today so we should all be here ready to get going tomorrow.
