LASER 4.7 YOUTH WORLDS – ROYAL VARUNA YC – THAILAND

Race Day Two

Yet another challenging day in the Gulf of Thailand. The fleet launched into 16-18Kts from the SW at about midday for the 1300 start. The start line was further south and offshore today. Tide changed at 1340 just after the first starts and quickly changed the wave/chop pattern from challenging to challenging just different! The wind eased slightly for the second race but was still above 14Kts.

Andy had another challenging day in a tough fleet (we recognise the some sailors from 2008 in Croatia presumably sailing in their last major 4.7 event). He scored a 34th and 37th and is 37th overall.

George had a great day posting a 12th and 16th and is sitting at a very creditable 19th overall.

Ross and Aaron also had good days in the under 16s with a 15th and 19th respectively in race one and reversed in race two with Aaron on 14th and Ross on 19th. Overall Ross is 19th and Aaron 21st.

More of the same weather forecast for tomorrow.

Mums went shopping at Tesco's by taxi and we now have a very smart Styrofoam cool box for the Thai Navy supplied posh 'rubber duck'. The team had a relaxing evening with the 'back bliss' and 'sunburn' massages followed by a long swim session and volleyball game before dinner.
